Singapore

The Dual Commercial Law LLM \(Singapore and London\)

Pioneering initiatives driven by Singapore to endorse cross-border trade and investment through the convergence of Asia's business laws presents career opportunities for ambitious legal talent. For professionals and students wanting to develop their career in commercial law within expanding markets, South East Asia can offer exciting challenges and rewards.

Professional talent who can offer insight and knowledge in multiple jurisdictions can set themselves apart in the market. To be well versed in both Eastern and Western legal and business practices enhanced by experience of life in two of the world's major trading hubs will make an attractive proposition to potential employers in both parts of the world.

Queen Mary University of London's (QMUL) Centre for Commercial Law Studies (CCLS) has partnered with Singapore Management University to launch an innovative Masters of Law programme to train legal talent in cross-border commercial law. The fully integrated programme will give students the opportunity to be awarded a Dual LLM in Commercial Law \(Singapore and London\) degree after 15 months study in both London and Singapore, with QMUL and SMU.

QMUL is offering a successful applicant the opportunity to apply for a generous scholarship fund of £14,000 to assist with tuition fees.
