

David Chan is Professor of Psychology and Director of the Behavioural Sciences Institute at Singapore Management University. He is also Adjunct Principal Scientist at the Agency for Science, Technology and Research (A*STAR) and Co-Director of the Centre for Technology and Social-Behavioural Insights which is jointly established by A*STAR and SMU. He is recipient of the Lee Kuan Yew Fellowship for Research Excellence.

Professor Chan's research works have been published in top journals in psychology, management, and research methods. He has authored or edited eight books published by Routledge, Sage and World Scientific.

His works have been cited over 4000 times in various disciplines. In 2000, he was ranked 9th world-wide in the list of Top 100 most published researchers of the 1990's in the top journals of Industrial and Organizational Psychology. He has received several international scholarly awards and he is the first non-American to receive the Distinguished Early Career Contributions Award from the Society for Industrial and Organizational Psychology.

He has served as Senior Editor of the Asia Pacific Journal of Management, Associate Editor of the Journal of Organizational Behavior, Advisory Editor for Oxford Bibliographies (Management) published by the Oxford University Press, member on editorial boards of several journals and reviewer for several grant agencies in different countries.

Together with Nobel Laureate in Economics Professor Daniel Kahneman and Professor Ed Diener, Professor Chan served on an international committee which submitted to the United Nations a report on measures of national well-being across countries.

He is an Elected Fellow of six psychology organizations: the American Psychological Association, the Association for Psychological Science, the International Association of Applied Psychology, the Society for Industrial and Organizational Psychology, the Society for Personality and Social Psychology and the American Psychological Association's Division for Personality and Social Psychology.

In Singapore, he serves on numerous national councils, advisory panels and board of directors, and he is consultant to numerous public and private sector organizations. He is a recipient of the Outstanding Volunteer Award from the Ministry of Social and Family Development, the Special Recognition Honour by the Ministry of Home Affairs for outstanding contributions to the Home Team in the field of psychology, and the Public Administration Medal (Silver) National Day Award presented by the President of the Republic of Singapore.

He is an invited columnist for The Straits Times where he writes regularly on social and public policy issues and a consultant for Channel NewsAsia on several documentary and related programme series.