13:20 EDT - The Financial Times releases its 2015 worldwide rankings of Master of Finance programs. HEC Paris topped the list of pre-experience programs--i.e. programs geared toward those with little or no experience in the financial industry, according to the news outlet--followed by Esade Business School and ESCP Europe Business School. London Business School came in first among post-experience programs, followed by the University of Cambridge's Judge School of Business and Singapore Management University's Lee Kong Chian School of Business. The rankings data reflect a survey of alumni who graduated in 2012 and evaluates their career success thus far, according to the Times. (lindsay.gellman@wsj.com; @lindsaygellman)
