

Scholarships for teaching and research

Young Singaporeans who want to pursue a career in academia can apply for a new scholarship.

The Ministry of Education (MOE) intends to offer 10 to 15 undergraduate scholarships each year from now until 2030 to build a strong core of academic and research talent, reported The Straits Times online.

The MOE-Autonomous University scholarship will be given to students who demonstrate a high level of proficiency, motivation and interest in a particular field. The scholars will also be paired with the National University of Singapore, Nanyang Technological University or Singapore Management University.

The university will assign a mentor to share academic guidance and research expertise. The university will also help the scholar through a comprehensive programme to prepare him or her for an academic career in research and teaching.